

Nothing Wasted

Presentation and photos by David Tilson

The Importance of Conserving Wildlife

Why Conserve Wildlife?

Nature is simply a necessity for life.

- Nature provides the raw materials and natural resources that drive our economy.
 - It provides natural materials for food and medicine.
- No species is isolated. You cannot effect one species without effecting another.
 - Nature is a great source of enjoyment and entertainment.

How can I help Promote Wildlife?

The first step to promoting wildlife is educating yourself. Get some information on the types of wildlife near you and how you can help.

Most conservation work is done by volunteers. So look for places you can volunteer.

Talk to local nature organizations to see what you can do to help. Educate others, friends and family, about the importance of conserving the natural world.

Conserving Wildlife Diversity

- When one species is lost, all the value that species had to offer is lost.
- Rarely is one species lost in which that loss doesn't effect another species.

Fun for All Ages

- Anyone can enjoy nature, young or old.
- Ways to enjoy nature include biking, hiking, fishing, planting a garden, and so much more.

Get involved. Enjoy Nature.

